

Southfield-based psychic's abilities known nationwide

SOUTHFIELD — It's said that we all have gifts of some sort — some can sing, some can play multiple musical instruments, some are excellent dancers, and some excel at sports.

But for Lynn Darmon, self-proclaimed psychic and owner of Southfield-based Heaven's Whisper, claims her gift is that of being clairvoyant, clairaudient and clairsentient. She says she can literally see, hear and feel as she reads people's energies and auric fields.

A self-proclaimed psychic and medium, she often has premonitions of events before they happen, she says. Many times she can connect with loved ones who have crossed over and receive messages for those still here.

Her abilities in this field have been noticed nationally, as her story has been told by Huffington Post, by AOL on its homepage, and in a recent segment on ABC's 20/20, she says. Her earliest memory of this gift was at five years old, and her ability to channel those who died has grown stronger as she has come to understand more about it.

Darmon, a resident of West Bloomfield, has a B.A. in Psychology from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, worked in the Psychiatric Department of Sinai Hospital in Detroit as part of a multidisciplinary psychiatric team for inpatients, and is also a Certified Reiki Practitioner – 2nd Degree.

She also worked as a freelance artist when her kids were younger, painting murals and furniture for residential and commercial properties.

"During the course of a reading, it is not uncommon for a loved one that has crossed over to come through," says Darmon. "I am often given names, dates of birthdays or anniversaries, often shown what they looked like in life, and 'feel' their personality. It is not uncommon to be shown how they crossed over, and if there is any message attached to help the client move forward in their life on this side."

"Of course there is never a guarantee because the information I receive does not come 'from' me, it comes 'through' me. I am merely the channel. I also always say that a client does not receive what s/he wants in a reading, but they receive what they need. So they may get something in a reading totally different than what they expected. Also, as of late, some of my readings have changed in a certain way. I have had more than a few Spirits come to me first before a client reading. They provide enough detail where I can play 'connect the dots' and find their family member. It's almost like those on the other side book their own reading!"

"I'm not out to prove anything and I don't do this for entertainment purposes. I believe that we are all capable of connecting to Spirits – our 'Higher Selves'.

When someone comes to me for a reading, they may not always necessarily get what they want, but they will most assuredly get what they need, and it always comes down to one thing — spiritual guidance."
